AN APPEAL.

The People of Nevada Asked to Send a Unanimous Petition to the Washington Authorities in Favor of the Carson Mint.

Citizens of Carson, I appeal to you in the name of our common welfare, to repel the attacks of the present Administration upon the vital interests of our State. President Cleveland has again given expression to his anti-silver sentiments, and has once more urged the Congress of the United States to suspend the coinage of standard silver dollars.

If the President would content himself with writing messages on this subject we of Nevada might easily pass his hasty utterances in silence, since it is apparent that the majority in Congress will not accede to his demands in this regard. But he has gone further, and in his desire to injure the silver interests as much as possible, has unlawfully caused the closing of the United States Mint in this State.

Economy was the alleged reason for the action. The falsity of this position has been clearly established, for in an address forwarded by the people of Nevada to the President soon after the closing of the Mint, it was proved by figures taken from the books of that institution, that it had been operated at a profit to the Government, and no one doubts that it would continue in the same way if it were given a fair opportunity, and if the unjust discriminations against it were removed.

Although the President did not reply to our petition, it is evident that he and his counsellors read it, for they soon after devised a plan to give them the pretext they sought. They knew that the Mint could never be made to show a loss so long as it was continued as a Mint proper, and they did not dare to order its dismantlement in the face of the fact that it had always been a source of revenue to the National Treasury. Therefore they plotted to make history that would serve their purpose. To this end they ordered the Mint reopened as an assay office, although the intelligent sentiment of the community arose against such action. The President and the Secretary of the Treasury knew that the Carson Mint could never be made to pay as an assay office. So did the people of Nevada, and they protested against this intentional, preconcerted and fraudulent misrepresentation. The Administration is determined to make its own facts, and will then argue from them in giving a reason for finally abandoning the Carson Mint.

Now then, the question of "What shall we do?" presents itself. While it is true that petitions are not always efficacious, yet in this case it is the only remedy left us, and happily it is one of our rights that cannot be abridged. I beg to propose the sending of a petition signed by every man, woman and child in the State, addressed to the President and Congress, setting forth the facts as they exist, and demanding the immediate re-opening of our Nevada Mint.

Some citizens outside of Carson may ask what interest they have in this matter. The answer is simple: If the Administration succeed in showing that our Mint is a losing proposition, the first deduction to be drawn by the great money powers of the world will be that our mines are no longer yielding bullion sufficient to keep it profitably employed. In any event our enemies would be quick to allege this, and the result upon our prosperity would in a great measure be the same as if it were true. Foreign capital would be driven out and kept out of the State; our industries would languish, our markets would fail, and there would be a general and wide-spread depression in business, that would include in its scope every miner, every rancher, every business man, every professional man, every mechanic and every laboring man in the State. That is why all should join in demanding justice. It is a case of life or death with us. If we neglect our own interests we need have no hopes that anyone else will attend to them for us. Memorials and petitions from Legislatures are pigeon-holed as fast as they are received, and that practice will continue, but a unanimous uprising of the people, such as is here suggested, would certainly make some impression, even upon the stolid politicians of the National Capital.

ALL SORTS.

—Happy New Year to all.
—Wizard Oil at Geo. Thaxter's.
—Charlie Stoddard came up from the Bay yesterday.
—Miss Alice Wilsey has resigned her position as teacher.

—There was a jolly crowd at the masquerade last evening.

—The Chronicle is still advising the members to blackmail Stewart.

—Cap. Avery will spread a big lunch at the Hole in the Wall today.

—Room to rent within one block of the Capitol. Inquire at this office.

—The County Commissioners wound up the year's business yesterday.

—A man and grizzly bear wrestling in the streets is the latest sensation here.

—Members will find the Steam Laundry a good place to get their washing done.

—There was a big jollification at the Curry Engine house last evening. The boys painted 'er red.

—The members are slowly coming in. Several arrived yesterday, and there will be an avalanche today.

—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is recommended by physicians of the greatest eminence on both sides of the Atlantic, as the most reliable remedy for colds and coughs, and all pulmonary disorders. It affords prompt relief in every case. No family should ever be without it.

—Health is impossible when the blood is impure, thick, and sluggish, or when it is thin and impoverished. Under such conditions, boils, pimples, headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, and one disease after another is developed. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it will make the blood pure, rich, warm, and vitalizing.

How to Create a Boom.

Every little town and hamlet, every mining camp and postoffice in Northern California must wake up and be at work, if they want to be ahead of the times. Organize promptly, and take steps by judicious advertising to make known the merits of your own locality. Don't wait for the adjoining towns or the next camp to boom things for you.

If you have some good quartz ledges or paying gravel mines, join heartily in a movement to let the world know it.

If you can produce good apples and pears and prunes, publish it all.

If your section is adapted to fine grapes, or olives or nuts, let every man who is looking for land know the true facts.

Don't wait for some one else to reap all the benefits of the coming land boom, but take hold in good earnest and make things hum in your own home.

Above all, don't sell all your land to enrich some one else, but plant a part of it to oranges, olives, lemons, figs, nuts, grapes, or whatever it is best adapted to, and then sell off what you can't use to advantage. This is the true way to boom your own section.

—One of the most pleasing of descriptive writers is Thomas Magoon, of San Francisco. No one excels him in love of nature, and he has a wide acquaintance with California scenery. His regard for the forests is strong, and he often pleads for their preservation. In a recent letter to the Bulletin, relating to the injury caused by fires on the mountains, he penned this eloquent passage:

Times has so long seen these trees grow, and with his slow-footed centuries, has so long in sunshine and in shade, in calm and storm, in snow and silence, walked down their forest aisle of majesty and beauty, the age alone should make them sacred, at least against wanton destruction; but sacredness and sheep-herding in California at least, have not even a suggestion of affinity.

It is notorious that most of the fires that cause such fearful destruction of timber are set by sheep herders, either through carelessness or with the object of improving the pasture. And if this sort of vandalism continues, the doom of the forests will be sealed.

A NEW VIEW OF CONSUMPTION.

And One which Appeals to Common Sense.—Many Curable Cases.

[Medical Review.]

"Many persons die of Consumption who could easily be cured," says Dr. S. C. Clark, of Watertown, N. Y., "if they would go at it right. I have a new view of the disease. Consumption is not always of lung origin."

"How so? What is it then?" "Many cases of consumption are secondary. The disease itself prevails everywhere, but the best practitioners refuse to attribute it entirely to inheritance or the weather. If a person lives in the most favorable climate in the world and has any tendency to lung weakness, if certain conditions exist in the system, that climate, however favorable, will not prevent development of the disease. The disorder in such cases is only a secondary symptom in the lungs of some other ailment, and can never be cured until approached through its source."

"Yes, doctor; but what is the method of approach?" "If you dip your finger in acid you burn it; do you not?" "Yes."

"If you wash this burnt finger every second with the acid, what is the result?"

"Why constant inflammation, festering and eventual destruction of the finger."

"Precisely! Now then for my method, which commends itself to the reason and judgment of every skillful practitioner. You know certain acids are developed in the body. Well, if the system is all right these acids are neutralized or utilized and carried out. If the system is run down by excesses, anxiety, continual exposure, or overwork, these acids accumulate in the blood. If there is any natural weakness in the lung, this acid attacks it, having a natural affinity for it, and if the acid is not neutralized or passed out of the system, it burns, ulcerates and finally destroys the lung. Is this clear?"

"Perfectly! But how do you prevent the accumulation of these acids in the system?"

"Irregularities of the liver and kidneys create this excess of acid and the supply can be cut off only by correcting the wrong action of these organs. The kidneys alone should carry out in quantity, in solution, enough of this acid daily, which, if left in the blood, would kill four men. When the stomach, the liver and the kidneys are all conspiring to increase the acid, the wonder is that weak lungs resist death as long as they do!"

"But you have not told us how you would treat such cases."

"No, but I will. The lungs are only diseased as an effect of this acid or kidney poison in the blood. After having exhausted all authorized remedies to correct this acid condition, I was compelled, in justice to my patients, to use Warner's safe cure; though a proprietary remedy, it is now recognized, I see, by leading physicians, by Presidents of State Boards of Health and by insurance physicians, as a scientific and the only specific for those great organs in which over ninety per cent. of diseases originate or are sustained."

"Is this form of treatment successful?"

"It is wonderfully so, and for that reason I am only too willing that you should announce it to the world of consumptives."

Note by the Publishers:—We have received the above interview from H. H. Warner & Co., Rochester, N. Y., with the request that we publish it for the good of suffering people. In a foot note to their letter they say:

"The experience of Dr. Clark is not strange to us. In our correspondence we have found that many thousands of people are suffering from what they think is Consumption, whereas the real difficulty is with the liver and kidneys, proven by the fact that when these organs are restored to health by the use of Warner's safe cure, the consumption disappears, and so does uremic or kidney poisoning, which causes so many symptoms of diseases that the human system is subject to. The same may be said of rheumatism, caused by an acid condition of the system. We insist upon what we always have claimed, if you remove the cause, the system will soon perfect the work already begun. Mrs. Rev. Dr. Theodore Wolf, of Gettysburg, Pa., wife of the editor of the Lutheran Quarterly, said her friends thought her far gone with Consumption, 'but after a thorough treatment with Warner's safe cure, she says: 'I am perfectly well.' We can cure thousands of such cases, but one is enough. If you publish the above article, kindly send us a marked copy."

We gladly give place to the article, for if we can in any way stay the ravages of Consumption, which carries away so many millions yearly, it is our bounden duty so to do. —PUB.
